In announcing his ruling on "the sufficiency of the facts," Justice Gavegan outlined the scenes depleted on the films in question and said:
"Some of the films depict scenes supposed to be enacted in a resort where women are subjected to involuntary degradation. As it is well known that to maintain such a place is of itself a criminal offence I am unable to preceive why the public exhibition for money of scenes supposed to transpire therein should be supposed to transpire therein should be entitled to the protection of a court of

The court said further:

"It might be possible to flan and court at the state of the special part of the court of the cour nal suggestion, for the promoters of such a scheme to pray to a court of equity for protection against interference by the police. Needless to say the prayer would be denied, and municipalities, while directing proper attention to improved methods of salvage, would nevertheless continue in their efforts to protect the public health by confining and disposing of waste matter through underground of waste matter through underground passages."

Justice Gavegan expresses "doubt if the owners of the plaintiff corporation would have had the audacity to undertake the public display of certain revolt-ing details contained in the exhibition, if it were not for the general discredit in which they evidently but erroneously beeve the police to be held in this city.

"The police as a body are entitled to, and I believe have, the confidence of the community at large, notwithstanding the reflections now and then cast upon them by the conduct of some of their unworthy members. It would be equally unjust to stigmatize theatrical managers as a class because of exhibitions of deprayity and inordinate greed for gain on the part of inordinate greed for gain on the part of Justice Gavegan said he had been un-able to find a single case of police in-terference with such productions which was not justified, and that if persons engaged in licensed callings abuse their li-cense and run afoul of the penal law they will be relegated by a court of equity to the tribunal where such matters belong."

The court concludes that "the exhibition in question, or at least parts of bition in question, or at least parts of of those whose minds are open to such influences, and that therefore the application for an injunction pendente lite should be denied with costs." The court will sign the order in the case to-morrow.
